

Entomologists

Name: _____

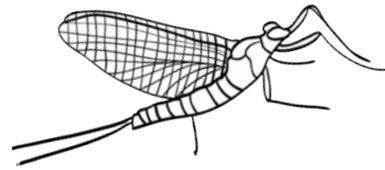

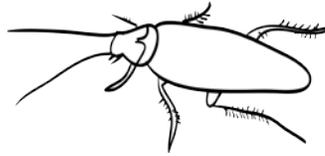

©www.freewordwork.com

An entomologist is a scientist. They are a type of zoologist who studies insects.

©www.freewordwork.com

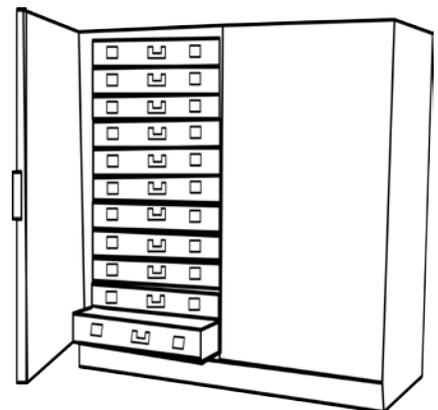

They will work to learn about the lives of insects. They might also study how insects interact with humans. Sometimes they will work to find out more about how insects interact with their environment.

©www.freewordwork.com

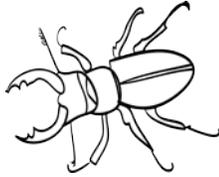

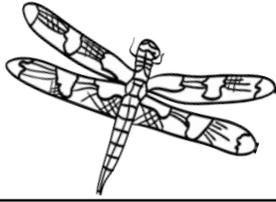

When a person becomes an entomologist, one place they can work is at a museum. They might curate a collection of insects.

Curate means to select, organize and present.

©www.freewordwork.com

Can you label the insects?

Word Bank

ant

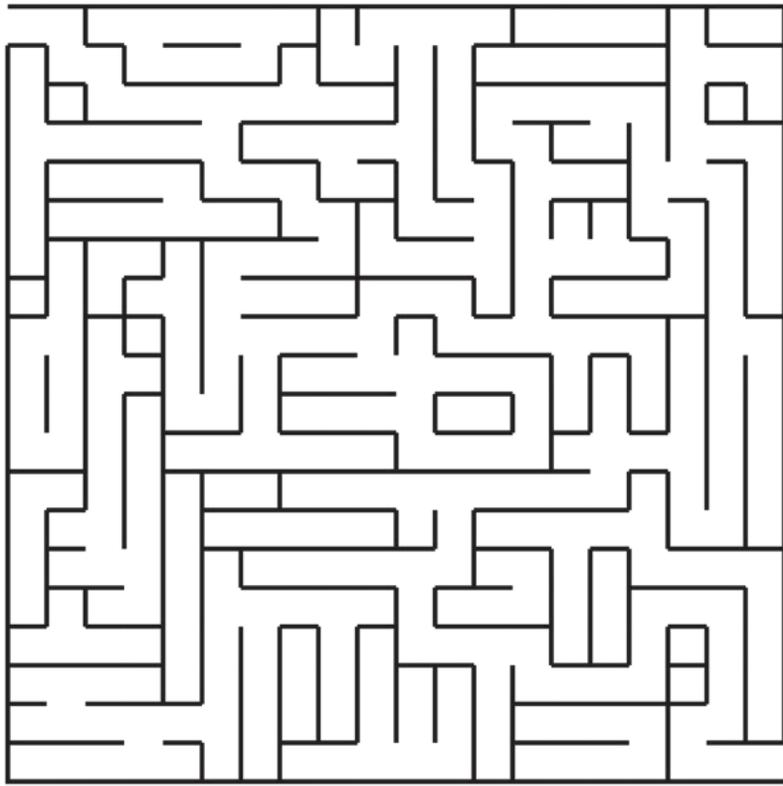

dragonfly

yellow jacket

beetle

An entomologist might work in a lab or in the field. When an entomologist works in the field, they are studying insects in their natural environment.

Follow the path to help the entomologist find his tools.

Can you find the names of famous entomologists?
Make a list here:
